

A Singing Valentine story

High school students hired us to deliver a Singing Valentine to their teacher. As we were driving over, our tenor, on his way to his first-ever delivery, volunteered that he really did not get what this was all about. We said nothing. When we walked into the classroom the teacher was surprised, of course, and said "What's going on here?" I explained as I handed him his card and long-stemmed red rose bouquet. We sang him a love song first and he was blushing. Then we sang Irish Blessing and his eyes were tearing. As we were walking away from the classroom, our tenor spoke up and said "I get it!"

Keith Eckhardt for the Got Music? Quartet